

My dear Professor Cesaro

I thank you very much for the copy of your new German work on algebraic analysis which you so kindly sent me. I have been reading it with the greatest interest and I want to congratulate you upon the clearness and simplicity of its exposition. I have the original Italian works always on my desk and I was not surprized when I learned that the Germans were desirous of translating them into their language. I know of no more satisfactory work of its scope and I shall take the greatest pleasure in recommending it to students here.

With most pleasant recollections of our meeting several years ago and with best wishes for your continued success I remain

Faithfully yours
