

Ann Arbor, March 2, 1900

My dear Professor Cesàro:

I have not been unmindful of your desire to come to this country. At the meeting of the American Mathematical Society held in Columbus last summer I called the special attention of the Council to your desire and in various other ways have brought the matter before prominent mathematicians in this country.

President David Starr Jordan, of the Leland Stanford University, at Palo Alto, California, is to be here in Ann Arbor on Monday next, but inasmuch as I am to be in Chicago at that time I have written him a letter calling attention to your desires and telling him something of your attainments.

Of course, Ann Arbor,

You can easily understand that variancies such as you are desirous of filling occur rarely.

Very truly yours,

W. L. Derman.
