Naples, May 17, 1904.

My dear Professor Sears,

I have just found the letter of introduction of which I spoke yesterday and I take the liberty to send it herewith. Mrs. Ford and myself leave Naples to-morrow morning for a short trip at Sorrento, Amalfi and Positano after which we shall return directly to Rome and thence to Florence. In this letter I shall therefore be obliged to say "good-bye", hoping however to see you again either upon this side or upon the other side of the Atlantic.

Very respectfully yours
W. B. Ford.
